U.S. paying Laotians for combat?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is paying Laotian Air Force pilots for combat missions they don't fly and the salaries of Cambodian soldiers who either don't exist or are children, according to a congressional staff report.

The report, written by two staff investigators for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who toured Southeast Asia in April, detailed military conditions in Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam in the aftermath of the Paris peace agreements and the subsequent withdrawal of American troops.

The study, issued Sunday by a subcommittee of the foreign relations panel, said investigators James G. Lowenstein and Richard M. Moose discovered the United States was making monthly lump sum payments to Laotian Air Force pilots for not flying missions.

"We were told that the Laos Air Force wants to comply with the ceasefire but that the military region commanders, especially in the south, continue to call for strikes," the staff aides reported, adding that the funds were paid "to encourage the air force not to fly."

The two investigators said they confirmed that the money to pay Laotian flight salaries comes from the Pentagon and is disbursed through the Central Intelligence Agency outpost in Vientiane, the capital of Laos.

The report also confirmed stories of how thousands of children under 16 were on the Cambodian Army payroll — perhaps as many as 4,500.

Cambodian unit commanders "like to recruit children because they can pocket their pay and the children don't complain," the report said.

The study said Lowenstein and Moose were also told by Cambodian officials that as many as 100,000 "phantom" soldiers may have been listed on that country's military payroll.

The major reason for the deception, according to U.S. and Cambodian authorities, was a corrupt system that allowed top-ranking Cambodian military officers to pocket the money allocated to pay the fictitious soldiers.

Jean Mayer new Festival Queen

The 1973 Lompoc Valley Flower Festival has a queen — pretty Jean Mayer, a 17-year-old graduated senior from Cabrillo High School.

The new queen received the nod of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses judging committee Saturday night in the Veterans Memorial Building after stirring the audience with a vocal selection, accompanying herself on the guitar.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Mayer, 3350 Via Dona, Mission Hills, Jean was sponsored by the Lompoc Rotary Club.

Serving as her court will be first runnerup, Regina Ward; second runnerup, Betty Barcelona; and third runnerup, Cindy Roselli. Selected as "Miss Congeniality" was Christine Ruffino.

Following the selection, Queen Jean was crowned by last year's Flower Festival queen, Vicki Diaz.

Several hundred persons witnessed the talent demonstrations of the eight queen candidates with Jim Carey as master-of-ceremonies. The program opened with a welcoming address by Mayor E. C. Stevens.

Other candidates were Cathy Hannemann, Bonnie Sue Nash and Kathi Costa.

Irene Robbins was chairman of the queen's contest committee with Janet Hofmeister, coordinator. The cornation ball co-chairmen were Sharon Figueroa and Mrs. Hofmeister.

Queen Jean will reign over all Flower Festival activities beginning Thursday, June 21 through June 24. She will ride in a specially constructed float in the huge parade Saturday morning, set for 10 a.m.

Supreme Court tied on Clean Air Act vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court upheld by a tie vote today tough interpretations of the 1970 Clean Air Act but failed to establish any binding legal precedent on the issue of federal and state standards.

The tie decision let stand a ruling by U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt and the U.S. Appeals Court for the District of Columbia in favor of the Sierra Club and other environmentalist groups. However, a tie vote in the Supreme Court does not constitute a final definition of law.

Pratt had barred the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) from approving any supplementary state regulations which would allow "significant degradation" of any clean air. He was upheld by the appeals court and EPA asked Supreme Court review on grounds federal standards would prove sufficient to protect existing clean air.

Because of the legal dispute, EPA officials have withheld approval of any state supplementary plans on grounds none could assure the result sought by Pratt.

The tie vote resulted because Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. declined to participate in the case. As customary in tie votes, there was no breakdown how individual justices voted.

Government landscaped Western White House

NEW YORK (UPI) — The government spent $76,000 to landscape President Nixon's house at San Clemente, Calif., Newsday reported Sunday.

The government said the improvements were needed for security.

Newsday said the $76,000 was in addition to $100,000 in improvements to Nixon's private estate at San Clemente that the government previously reported.

The White House said the landscaping was done to replace areas used for secret service installations, the Long Island newspaper said.

The government said the improvements "were done in the name of security," Newsday said.

Acting White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren told UPI at the President's bayside villa at Key Biscayne, Fla., that he had no exact figures on work done on the property after Nixon bought it in the summer of 1969.

Newsday said the $76,000 figure was disclosed during an interview with Arthur F. Sampson, head of the Government Services Administration, and with a Secret Service official.

Agnew claims Watergate probe will 'muddy waters'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said today that the Senate's Watergate hearings will only "muddy the waters of justice beyond redemption."

"Even if the Senate hearings succeed in reliably establishing the guilt of some individuals in the Watergate, they will probably do so at the expense of ultimate conviction of those persons in court," Agnew said.

"And this is bound to leave the American people with an ugly resentment at the spectacle of wrongdoers going scotfree."

The nationally televised hearings are scheduled to continue Tuesday at 10 a.m. EDT and a spokesman said this afternoon that former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans would testify after a return appearance by Herbert L. Porter, of the Nixon re-election organization.

In a speech prepared for a meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General in St. Louis, Agnew said the Senate Watergate committee, headed by Sen. Sam Ervin, DN.C., would not be able to ferret out the truth because it lacks the "procedural safeguards" under the judicial system.

In making the speech — devoted entirely to Watergate —Agnew rejected advice of some of his more conservative supporters to dissassociate himself from President Nixon in view of his aspirations for the Presidency in 1976.

He took issue with Ervin's statement that "it is much more important for the American people to find out the truth about the Watergate case than to send one or two people to jail."

"I cannot agree with the suggestion that determining the truth and convicting the guilty are two entirely separate processes, one for the Congress to pursue and the other for the court," the Vice President said.

"The truth itself is what a court relies on in deciding whether to convict or acquit a defendant. And because human freedom, fortune, reputation, and in some cases life itself, hang in the balance with the making of that decision, our judicial system has developed the most careful procedures that exist anywhere in our whole society in testing and verifying, checking and doublechecking the truth about what men did or did not do and why."

Lacking courtroom safeguards, Agnew said, the Watergate committee, "I am sad to say, can hardly hope to find the truth and can hardly fail to muddy the waters of justice beyond redemption."

He added: "There is no question whatever that some men despite their innocence will be ruined by all this, even though I am sure the Senate intended nothing of the kind when it commissioned this investigation."

The Watergate hearings resume Tuesday —assuming a federal judge rejects the new federal prosecutor's request to halt national television coverage —with plans to call more important witnesses who so far have been quoted by others.

President summons committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon met for two hours with his top economic strategists today, then summoned members of a high-level labor-management advisory committee to the White House to discuss the administration's next move in the fight against inflation.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon has made no final decisions yet and was weighing a wide range of proposals to strengthen the Phase III wage-price control program which has not checked the worst inflation in more than 20 years.

Nixon also met with his national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, to discuss the shaky Vietnam truce and next week's visit of Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Ziegler said Kissinger would return to Paris tonight to resume his talks with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho.

Said Ziegler, "I think as a result of the upcoming sessions that Dr. Kissinger will have that things will be worked out. We expect things to be worked out."

Before heading back to Paris, Kissinger telephoned Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott urging that the Senate take no action for the time being at least on a pending proposal to cut off all funds for bombing in Cambodia.

Second Skylab rocket prepared for launch

HOUSTON (UPI) — While ground crewmen rolled the next Skylab rocket to the launch pad, the space station's first astronauts today snapped hundreds of pictures of the mountainous west and massive clouds over their home state of Texas.

The Skylab rocket and Apollo command ship was moved from its towering Cape Kennedy hangar to the firing site on the back of a massive crawlertransporter. It was a key step toward the launch of three more spacemen July 27.

"Very good," said Skylab 1 commander Charles "Pete" Conrad when told of the rollout.

A crowd of several thousand spaceport workers and guests watched the 224-foot crew ferry ship begin its five-hour, 3 ½ mile move at 7 a.m. EDT.

Four hours later, Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz began the longest earth resources photographic pass yet assigned to the crew of America's first space station. They started taking pictures over Washington state and northern Oregon and moved southeast across the west.

"Oh, there's a nice mountain," Weitz said. "It looks like Mt. Hood. Man is it clear around these mountains today."

The pilots spotted several targets in Oklahoma, including Fort Cobb reservoir, but reported that much of eastern Texas was blanketed by clouds.

They were in their 18th day of flight around earth with 10 more to go.

The Skylab 2 astronauts, Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma, plan to double the duration of their predecessors and stay up a record 56 days. A third crew also plans to live and work for 56 days aboard Skylab later this year.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz already have taken 11,224 pictures of the sun through the most powerful solar observatory ever orbited. And their ground watching cameras have snapped 5,533 pictures of earth and its natural resources.

The crew's schedule today called for another earth resources photographic pass, the eighth of the mission, and 4½ additional hours of sun watching.

Price of gold drops, dollar rallies

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold fell by a sharp $4.50 an ounce today while the dollar staged a modest rally in early trading in London, the only major European market open for business.

Trading was described as "very moderate."

Most European markets were closed because of the Ascension Day holiday.

On the London gold market, the most important in the world, the metal's price was pegged at $115.50 an ounce in the first of two daily price fixings by major bullion dealers. This compared with the Friday peak of $120.

The dollar changed hands in mid-morning trading at $2.5715 to the pound, up a bit from the Friday closing price of $2.5750.

Dealers said the lack of trading on the major markets on the continent might give the dollar the time it needs to stabilize after its ups and downs last week.

They said President Nixon's hint of anti-inflation measures, which came too late Friday to save the dollar from falling that day, could help bolster the dollar when money markets reopen Tuesday.

The London newspaper Financial Times today expressed opposition to a French government call to restore the dollar's convertability into gold as a means of resolving the world's continuing paper money troubles.

The Nixon administration suspended the convertability of dollars held overseas when it first devalued the dollar in August, 1971.

Power cuts in New York, Washington

United Press International

Electricity through the populous Northeast Corridor including New York City and Washington, D.C., was reduced by 5 per cent today in the first major power cut of the summer.

The cuts came as temperatures rose to the 90-degree level and headed toward record highs for the date.

Consolidated Edison, New York City's major electricity supplier, made the first cut at 10:16 a.m. That followed by similar reductions in the rest of New York State; the power pool servicing Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland, and the Potomac Electric Power Co. which served Washington, D.C., and parts of Maryland.

Spokesmen for all the utility companies involved said the reduction was voluntary and would not drastically affect normal operations and electrical usage.

Still, users in New York City were urged not to use major appliances, and to use air conditioners only when necessary and then at low settings. Businesses and government agencies were urged to curtail the use of such machinery as elevators, air conditioning systems and escalators.

The temperature rose to 91 in New York at noon, only three degrees shy of the record high for June 11 in the city set in 1920. The reading was the same at the Newark, N.J., airport, only two degrees short of the record set in 1970.

The weather forecast called for more 90-degree temperatures throughout the affected area.

Helicopter carrying Brandt almost crashes

MASSADA, Israel (UPI) — Strong winds buffeted a helicopter which Chancellor Willy Brandt and 29 other persons were using today on a sightseeing trip, causing it to swerve and pushing it to within 100 feet of a 1,200-foot drop on this rock fortress overlooking the desert floor.

Someone inside the Israeli Sikorsky-53 helicopter pushed Brandt out the front door after the helicopter came to rest. The West German chancellor landed on his feet.

Brandt brushed himself off, walked away and afterwards asked, "what accident?"

Archeologist Yigal Yadin stood nearby and greeted Brandt for a 45-minute tour of the fortress, situated 1,200 feet above the Dead Sea and built by Herod the Great. Romans besieged it for three years before the remaining Jews committed suicide in 73 A.D.

The Israeli ambassador to Bonn, Eliashiv Ben Horin, fell 20 feet from the helicopter, sustaining minor injuries to his leg, tearing his shirt in several places and scuffing his trousers. Helicopter crewmen treated him and he joined the tour 15 minutes later.

Paul Frank, the West German undersecretary of state, and Nahum Astar, an Israeli Foreign Ministry official, sustained slight injuries to their hands and legs. Helicopter crewmen bandaged the cuts.

The accident occurred on the final day of Brandt's five-day official visit to Israel.

Witnesses said the swirling dust thrown up by the clattering helicopter blades almost obscured the craft. It turned around and around over the ledge and then rolled back toward the edge after it touched down.

Security guards raced to the helicopter to try to halt its backward roll, but they failed. The chopper swerved to the side, forcing security guards to drop to the ground and then it stopped at a big rock.

The passengers later said no one said a word during the maneuvering. The front door, near where Brandt was sitting, had been open all the time.

Brandt went to Massada after beginning the final day of his five-day visit with a 45-minute meeting over breakfast in his hotel room in Herzlia, north of Tel Aviv, with Defense Minister Moshe Dayan. They discussed the Arab guerrilla situation in neighboring Lebanon.

A Bonn government spokesman described the talks as "very friendly."

Government wants transcript

The Turkish government has ordered a complete transcript of the murder trial of Armenian-American Gourgen Yanikian, being tried in Santa Barbara Superior Court for the slaying last Jan. 27 of two Turkish diplomats, it was learned Friday.

The report of the intensified interest of the Turkish government, which has expressed concern that the slayings of the two members of the Los Angeles consulate was part of a plot to have Turkish officials killed elsewhere by Armenian patriots, came as the trial finished its second week.

Judge John A. Westwick ordered a recess Friday at noon to Monday morning, allowing the jurors to have a long weekend.

District Attorney David D. Minier has said he hopes to wind up the prosecution case Monday. He surprised the jury and defense by having two life size male mannikins brought into the court by deputy sheriffs.

The mannikins, their bodies pierced by wooden dowells to show the course of bullets fired into the victims as they sat at lunch with Yanikian at the Santa Barbara Biltmore Hotel, brought startled exclamations from some jurors, and stifled laughter from others.

Minier said he felt it was better to use mannikins to show the barrage of bullets fired into the Turkish officials rather than gruesome photographs taken by law enforcement officials.

Energy department expected

State lawmakers scramble to meet new deadline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California lawmakers embarked today on a scramble to clear up a committee backlog of more than 1,000 measures before a Friday deadline imposed under the legislature's new two-year sessions.

The proposals up for hearing this week range from Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax ceiling plan to bills on blood banks and prophylactics.

If the measures do not clear the committees by the June 15 cutoff date, they cannot go into effect this year and cannot be voted on by either house until next January, according to the new legislative rules.

The rush to meet the June 15 deadline is one of the first major effects of Prop 4, approved by the voters last fall. It provided for two-year, congressional type sessions. The deadline was self-imposed by the lawmakers.

Some committees have scheduled unusual night hearings this week to act on the huge backlog of bills.

The Assembly Criminal Justice Committee has set 102 measures for hearing. The Senate Judiciary Committee has a list of 69.

The cutoff date, however, can be lifted by a two-thirds vote of either the Assembly or the Senate.

Reagan's tax limitation proposal is expected to be rejected this week by the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee. The governor has anticipated the probable rejection and is close to qualifying the plan for the ballot by using the initiative process.

Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, DBeverly Hills, has scheduled two of his bills—one outlawing donations of blood for pay and the other permitting the sale of prophylactics in vending machines—for hearings in Senate committees.

Nixon giving away some of his power?

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Weakened by Watergate, President Nixon appears to be trying to restore his power by giving some bits and pieces of power away.

He has given his new domestic affairs adviser, Melvin R. Laird, far more authority than Laird's predecessor, John D. Ehrlichman, had.

Before agreeing to return to the administration, Laird, former secretary of defense, got Nixon to promise him cabinet rank, a seat on the National Security Council and free access to the President day or night.

Nixon also had to assure Laird the President was not implicated in the Watergate bugging or aware of its coverup. Nixon gave the same assurances to William D. Ruckelshaus when he asked him to temporarily take over the FBI and to Elliot L. Richardson when he asked him to be attorney general.

It probably is unique in White House history that a president would have to protest his innocence while handing out high government jobs.

Republican congressional leaders urged the President to appoint Laird, informed sources report, because they wanted a man in the White House they could work with. Nixon, still angry over Laird's opposition to the Christmas bombing of North Vietnam, is said to have made the choice reluctantly.

Another example of the President dealing out new power in an effort to heal his administration is the case of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and House GOP Leader Gerald Ford.

They told reporters they had served notice on Nixon that they would hereafter set their own agenda for the weekly leadership meetings they hold with the President.

Scott and Ford also have been invited to sit in from time to time on cabinet meetings.

By agreeing to such innovations, Nixon appears to be trying to better his contacts with Congress and get away from the Watergate image of a president isolated from the outside by a cordon of Ehrlichman-Haldeman types.

Bringing back Laird, a former congressman who has a considerable following on Capitol Hill, fits into the same pattern.

The role of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally in the new White House setup is still unclear. Friends of the former Texas governor, who recently switched his political affiliation from Democratic to Republican, say he is disenchanted and may, by stages, leave.

Acting Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren says Connally won't leave soon but won't stay "forever," which doesn't narrow his timetable down much.

Kissinger, Tho reported still far apart

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese government sources said today U.S. negotiator Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam are still far apart on six major points in their Paris talks to put teeth into the Jan. 27 ceasefire agreement.

Observers recalled, however, that when the first word of the cease-fire agreement leaked out last October, South Vietnam balked for months before accepting it because among other things it did not require North Vietnamese troops to withdraw.

Just how much more effort will be needed on all sides is borne out by two of the points that Tho has refused even to discuss, the South Vietnamese sources said. President Thieu will insist on spelling them out before he will agree to any new arrangement, they said.

The points are:

1. Withdrawal of the 145,000 to 300,000 North Vietnamese troops estimated (respectively by the United States and South Vietnam) to be in South Vietnam. Thieu wants them out; Tho refuses to admit they are even there.

2. Re-establishment of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), the six-mile-wide strip that was supposed to serve as a buffer between North and South Vietnam. It served as a sieve instead, and became only a memory after the Communists opened their Easter offensive last year.

The other four points are almost equally sticky. They include:

—The delineation of zones of control, either Saigon or Viet Cong, in South Vietnam. Saigon will agree only to the delineation of military positions. The Viet Cong insists that administrative and demographic zones be marked out—how much land and how many people each side controls.

—The establishment of the National Council of Reconciliation and Concord within a certain time-limit. The original deadline as recommended by the Paris agreement was 90 days after the cease-fire, or April 26. But that date has come and gone because the two sides cannot agree on who should belong to the council or what it should do.

—General elections. Thieu wants elections as soon as possible, but not while North Vietnamese troops remain in South Vietnam. The Viet Cong want the elections delayed to give them more time to gain ground politically under the protection of their own forces and their close allies, the North Vietnamese.

—A timetable for reduction of the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong armies. The original Paris agreement laid down none. Any new timetable would probably be a dead letter because of the issue of North Vietnamese troops.

Oil slick work of nature

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — The oil slick in the Santa Barbara Channel is a work of nature, according to two state investigators who scouted the ocean bottom in a tiny submarine.

The slick appeared last week, fed by an upwelling of oil and natural gas from the ocean floor.

It was last reported floating offshore in a ribbon about 50 yards wide stretching about 3 miles down the coast.

Mel Odemar, marine biologist for the state Department of Fish and Game, and Dan Everitts, petroleum engineer with the state Lands Division, descended 225 feet Sunday in a small submarine to examine the source of the slick.

Divers provided by petroleum companies examined the ocean floor last week after the upwelling erupted. They reported back that it was caused by natural leakage from undersea oil deposits, and was unconnected with the operations in the channel of offshore drilling platforms.

Man kills wife, five children

BOSTON (UPI) — A security guard who once complained his family was "a noose around my neck" killed his wife and five of his six children before taking his own life with an overdose of drugs.

Police said Sunday that George O'Leary shot his wife, Thelma, and five children; George Jr., 13; Colleen, 11; Kathleen, 10; and Michael and Melinda, 8-year-old twins, some time Friday or Saturday.

Their bodies were discovered by the eldest daughter, Theresa, 14, Sunday when she returned from a week-long stay at Boston City Hospital.

Police said the girl had been taken back to the hospital where she was resting comfortably.

Medical Examiner George Curtis said the bodies were badly decomposed. "It's difficult to come to a decision on the period of their death, but 24-48 hours is a rough estimate," Curtis said.

'Axis Sally' a college graduate

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — "Axis Sally" became a college graduate Sunday.

Miss Mildred Elizabeth Gillars, 72, dubbed "Axis Sally" for her anti-American propaganda radio broadcasts in World War II and later convicted of treason, was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University.

After 12 years imprisonment, she resumed studies at the school she attended in 1918 and received a degree in speech.

Dressed in cap and gown, Miss Gillars smiled as she accepted her diploma from Ohio Wesleyan President Tom Wenzlau. Most of the persons in the crowd did not know who she was because the school, at her request, did not publicize her graduation.

Living in Germany when World War II broke out, Miss Gillars became a propanganda broadcaster for "Europa Sender," playing American songs and using sweet chatter to try to demoralize American troops.

Dinner party fetes the Gastons

Congratulations and testimonials were the theme at the farewell dinner honoring Bob J. Gaston prior to his move to Hartford, Conn. A resident of Lompoc the last 11 years, he has been an agent for Connecticut Mutual Life Ins. Co. His transfer to the Home Office is a promotion, rewarding his sales record of placing with the top three agents in the country the last four years. The three are in the "million dollar" salesman status with the company.

At the surprise testimonial dinner for Bob and his wife Darlene, 105 friends paid their respects, reviewed his accomplishments, and wished him well in his new endeavors. Bob will receive a two year training at high business level.

Bob has been associated with Connecticut Mutual since 1967, on obtaining his B.A. degree from Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. Both he and Darlene have been active citizens of Lompoc since 1962. Bob gained state-wide recognition during his presidency of Lompoc Jaycees. He has also served as president of Central Coast Life Underwriters Association, was an officer of Kiwanis Club, and board member of Lompoc Boys Club, Mental Health Association and the Lompoc Valley Chamber of Commerce. He has been tourism chairman for the latter. Both he and his wife have been active in various youth organizations. The couple has three children. Darlene served in various capacities for Jaycee Wives and was its president in 1971.

Serving as party emcee, Robert Lilley introduced 16 of the couple's frineds who took the microphone for their special presentations and awards. On behalf of the City of Lompoc, Mayor Gene Stevens presented a plaque; for Lompoc Chamber of Commerce, John Larsson, president, presented an official proclamation. S.L. Raboy of Connecticut Mutual in Los Angeles, highlighted Bob's professional accomplishments. Wes Scanlon, company official, came by plane from Chicago, Ill. for the occasion.

Special guests included Mrs. Gaston's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ariza of Sacramento.

Dear Abby

The trash is running over since he ran out

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with Joe for six months. I fell so much in love with him I couldn't help myself. He said he loved me, too, but he never really believed that I loved him.

Someone told me that Joe was planning to skip town one of these days and not tell anyone where he was going. I asked Joe about it and he said it wasn't true.

I guess it was, because he has been missing for six days and five nights and no one has seen or heard from him. I am so worried and heartbroken I cry myself to sleep every night. I keep thinking he's been in an accident or something.

I won't even go outside to empty the trash for fear Joe will telephone me and I'll miss his call.

Please tell me what to do.

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: The person who told you that Joe was planning on skipping town evidently knew more about Joe than you did. Chances are he's all right, so don't worry about his safety. But it might be wise to wonder what kind of man would cause you so much grief when one telephone call would ease your aching heart. Empty the trash and get into your normal routine. He'll turn up. Bad pennies always do.

DEAR ABBY: Your batting average is about 99 per cent, which is so high no one should squawk; but when you goof, you sure blow it sky high.

Advising a secretary not to tell her boss that his wife went into his office and rummaged thru his drawers and inspected his files during his absence is completely unjust and unfair.

Without prejudging the motives of the boss' wife, a simple statement of who went into his office in his absence is sufficient.

If I knew that my secretary withheld any information from me about any activity in my place of business, she wouldn't be my secretary very long.

Did you consider what could happen if the wife walked off with something valuable from her husband's office? The secretary would be suspect.

You sort of shot from the hip on that one.

E. L.

DEAR E. L.: I certainly did. And it missed the mark. Thanks for adjusting my sights.

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a wonderful guy who is now serving in the armed forces. We are on a very tight budget as Mark doesn't make much money.

We are having a serious disagreement. Mark wants us to share an apartment with another couple to save expenses. He's known them only a few weeks and I've never met them. The other wife is in her teens and has a small baby. Abby, Mark and I are newlyweds and I want a place of our own — if it's only a hole in the wall. Mark says we girls can share the housework and keep each other company. I don't want to share the housework and I don't need company. I just want to be a wife to Mark.

Mark thinks I am being unreasonable. I think HE is. Who do you think is right?

Hurry, please, because Mark wants to tell his buddy one way or the other.

NOT GETTING THRU

DEAR NOT: I don't see anything "unreasonable" about your wanting to have a place of your own. I think Mark is unreasonable to expect you to share an apartment with people he hardly knows and you don't know at all. Stick to your guns.

DEAR ABBY: A girl with whom I work is getting married soon. She and I have spent our lunch hour together nearly every day since she came here a year ago. I was quite sure she would invite me to her wedding, but the other day she said she wasn't having anybody from the office because if she invited one she would have to have them all or there would be hard feelings.

Abby, she isn't friendly with any of the other girls, and I'm sure there would be no hard feelings if she were to invite me. I am very hurt, and I don't know how I can continue to have lunch with her every day and keep a plastic smile on my fact. If the situation were reversed, I'd have invited her to my wedding. I think she should be more concerned about MY feelings than the feelings of the other girls in the office who are mere acquaintances.

Should I tell her how hurt I am? Or should I let it slide?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Let it slide, dear. Some people don't feel as close to us as we feel to them.

Oswald: "An honest opponent is frequently a blessing to declarer. Not because he is honest but because he tries to help his partner when the only man he can help is declarer."

Jim: "East was one of these honest, but misguided players. He took his ace of clubs and led the suit back. South won and led two rounds of trumps. East couldn't wait to signal with the 10 of hearts on that second trump."

Oswald: "That signal caused South to pause and reflect. His contract wasn't very good to start with and he had intended to try the heart finesse. The signal caused him to see if he couldn't find another line of play."

Jim: "He did find one. There wasn't too much chance, but any chance was better than none and South believed East's signal. So he led his 10 of diamonds. West covered with the queen. South won in dummy; cashed dummy's ace of hearts and ran off all his trumps."

Oswald: "On the last trump East had to part with a diamond or chuck his king of hearts with either play being fatal."

Jim: "This type of play is called a 'Vienna coup.' It was necessary to find the queen of diamonds right; catch East with four diamonds and prepare for it by cashing the ace of hearts as a starter."

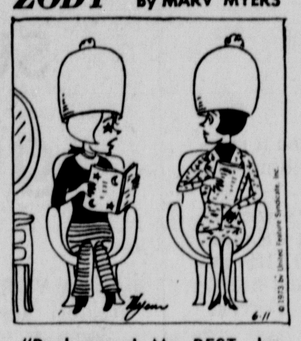
ZODY By MARV MYERS



"Bad news! My BEST day of the new quarter is the third . . . and that's my DENTAL appointment!"

MONDAY, JUNE 11 — Born today, you are inclined to be too easy-going for your own good. Gifted with a number of talents and abilities, you are prone to allow those gifts to develop on their own with little push from you and even less determination to make of them the most that is possible. You are capable of having a genuine influence upon your own and other generations, especially along artistic lines— but unles you pull yourself and your abilities together into one tight package of amibition and matching effort, you can think of that influence as a "might-have-been."

If you neglect your own opportunities and allow success to elude you simple because you fail to latch onto it as it goes sailing by, take care that you don't complain about "bad luck." Such complaints will only make others think the less of you; ultimately, they could even spoil your personal relationships completely, for while friends and loved ones can accept your own personality being the cause of failures, they will not be able to accept attempts to divest yourself of blame.

Because you are apt to waste energy on unimportant things, it is vital that you have at your side someone who can advise you concerning priorities. If that someone can possibly be your marriage partner, so much the better, for such a partner would know you better than any other and would, therefore, be best able to choose what is truly best for you in the light not only of your career success but also of your general happiness.

Tuesday, June 12

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You will have to overrride a number of obstacles this morning if you are to achieve the success possible for you this afternoon. Remain independent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Be fair, open, and truthful in your dealing with others. Where the very young are concerned, be sure to follow your own recent advice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You would be wise to call a spade a spade today. Never mind how difficult it is for you to attach labels, you must do so or forfeit success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Seek out one who has shown in many ways the great extent to which he understands your complex personality. Relieve another's mind regarding your feelings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Although your wish is to serve your own purpose as soon and as greatly as possible, this may be the time when it would be better to serve another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Set a watch over your tongue this morning. You could easily upset another by your use of words — and, even more, by your manner with them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Take yourself and your family seriously! Obligations to loved ones must not be allowed to take a back seat to your duties elsewhere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Give yourself something to work for; otherwise, you will find yourself slackening your pace when you are only midway into an enterprise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Extra personality plus; that's what you'll be needing if you are to make the right impression on higher-ups this morning. But don't gild the lily.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — If you are wise, you'll curb a tendency to be sarcastic, especially when it comes to other people's accomplishment. Don't overstay your welcome.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You rest content this evening if you take advantage of every opportunity to make gains throughout the day. Look in unusual places for helpful hints.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Though you may have tried to keep your expectations secret, don't be surprised to discover that others know precisely what you hope to find.

Weiskopf on golfing blitzkreig

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf, surprisingly somber after winning his second consecutive tournament and his third in four weeks on the tour, talked about a man who "never lived to see all this."

Weiskopf, who captured the IVB Philadelphia Golf Classic Sunday by four strokes over young sophomore Jim Barber with a 14-under par 274, said the death last March of his father had "something to do" with a streak that many say indicates the lanky, 30-year-old is finally showing the immense talent he has.

"My father got me started in golf," Weiskopf said after earning the $30,000 check for winning the same Whitemarsh Valley Country Club tournament he captured in 1971 with the same 14-under par total.

"He gave me money for the best equipment, made sacrifices and just lived his life for his children," Weiskopf said. "I felt after he died, I had disappointed him in some respects. He'd never tell me that but I thought you could see it in his face."

Weiskopf said that after his father died last March 14, "it opened my eyes and I started thinking about myself."

The results would have pleased his father.

Beginning at the Colonial National, which he won, Weiskopf has had an amazing streak of 17 consecutive sub-par rounds, best on the tour so far this year.

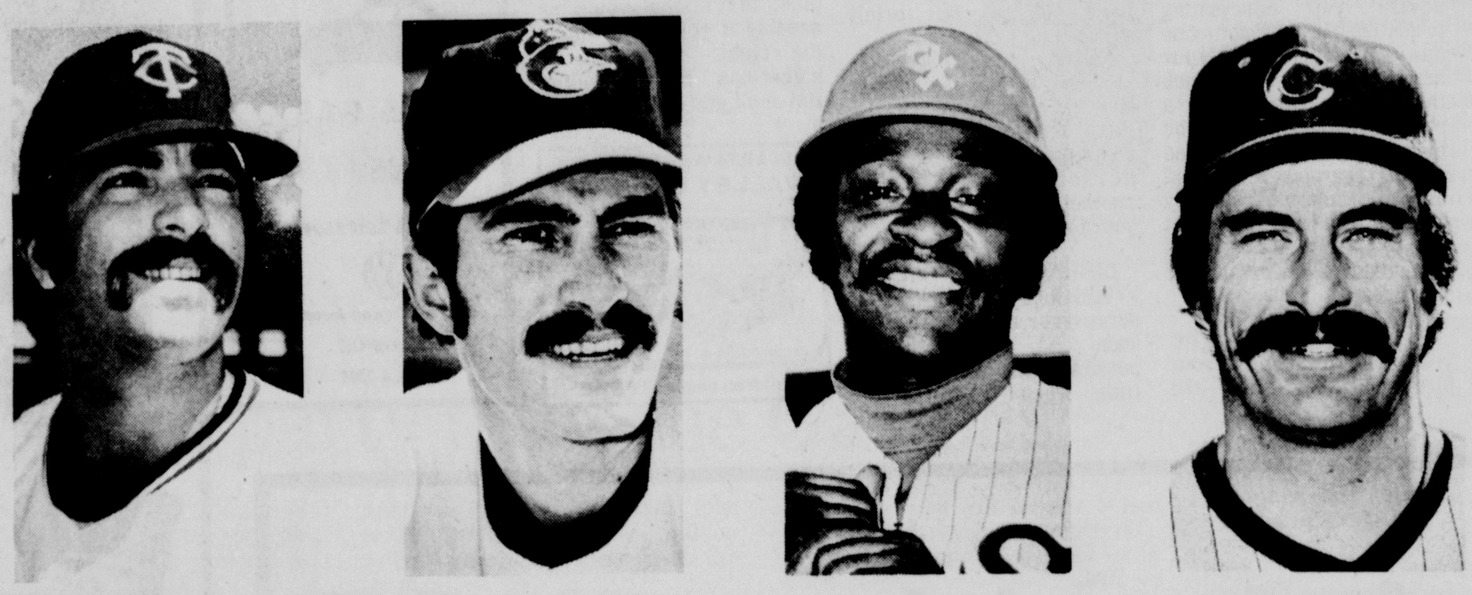
He was 14-under par at the Atlanta Classic, only to finish second to Jack Nicklaus and 17-under par at the Kemper Open last week, which he also won to earn a total $117,045 in a month, counting Sunday's victory.

But after shooting a one-under-par 71 to win going away Sunday, Weiskopf said "winning is more important than the money. Winning is the hardest thing to do and it is so much more rewarding, thrilling, enjoyable."

Barber, a 24-year-old pro picked up his largest career check with the second place money of $17,125 by virtue of a two-under 70 and a 278 total. John Miller and Forrest Fezler were next at 279.

Nicklaus, made a belated run at Weiskopf with a five-under 67. Dave Eichelberger, Gay Brewer and John Schlee were at 280.

The four bunched at 281 were Ken Still, Bruce Crampton, David Barber and Miller Barber.



SINCE JOE PEPITONE has packed his honorable wigs and headed off in the general direction of Japan, the major league hair lead is up for grabs. Some of the leading contenders are, from left, Danny Walton of Minnesota, Bobby Grich of Baltimore, Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox, and Bob Locker of the Chicago Cubs.

Secretariat's super win greatest ever?

by MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is that temptation to call it one of the greatest races ever run.

Some among the 69,138 at Belmont Park Saturday went a little further.

They said it might've been THE greatest race ever run, certainly the most remarkable.

They could be right.

From my own personal point of view, I've seen some pretty impressive performances in all sports the past quarter century, which, coincidentally, is the last time the Triple Crown was won by a superlative horse named Citation.

As far as individual performances go, I saw Don Larsen pitch a perfect game in the World Series; Bob Beamon accomplish his unbelievable long jump; Billy Mills in his unforgettable 10,000; Jack Nicklaus set his U.S. Open record and Mark Spitz corner the market on gold medals. All were something to see.

In team efforts, I've also seen the New York Mets and Jets capture world titles, the Los Angeles Lakers reel off 33 in a row and only lately, the Miami Dolphins sweep the boards clean.

Never before, though, have I ever seen anything like the manner in which Secretariat ran off all by himself and smashed all previous existing American records Saturday.

It wasn't a race so much as it was a spectacle, one I don't think I'll ever forget the rest of my life.

I find I'm not the only one who feel that way. Others do, too.

Says Donald Grant, the Mets' board chairman who was among those at Belmont Saturday:

"It wasn't only the fact that Secretariat won by 31 lengths. That in itself was really incredible, but the atmosphere and everything else about the way in which he did it made his accomplishment all the more astounding. I never have seen anything like it in my life."

Neither did Lucien Laurin, Secretariat's trainer.

"You're kidding?" he replied when someone asked him whether Secretariat's performance Saturday was the finest he had ever seen in his life. "How could it possibly be any better."

Inevitably, Laurin was asked to compare Secretariat with Man o'War and Citation.

"I never saw Man o' War run," replied the little whitehaired trainer, "I was around Citation though. I thought he was one of the greatest race horses I ever saw in my life."

Laurin gave it a little more thought.

"I think he's a better horse," he said.

Which one?

"My horse!"

Laurin didn't have to think on that one at all.

Secretariat, whose racing days are numbered because he has been syndicated for $6,080,000, which means he figures to be all through running by Nov. 15, is a magnificent looking animal. He has a regal manner about him to go with his extraordinary gook looks. But he isn't nearly as friendly as most horses; he's somewhat stand-offish, in fact.

"I think he's remote," says his Meadow Stable's owner, Helen (Penny) Tweedy, also owner of Riva Ridge, who won last year's Kentucky Derby and Belmont, but not the Preakness.

"If Secretariat were a person, you'd say he was aware of his public image. He knows how to behave. When the cameras click, the ears go up. He will kind of tease and munch and look distant, but he'll give every photographer one shot with the head up and the ears forward and the eyes alert. He's aware of people and the role he's supposed to play, but then he'll turn his back and go back to his hay or whatever. He's not a cozy, friendly horse. He doesn't seem to need people.

"Now Riva Ridge needs affection very much and needs to be told how wonderful he is. I think he likes that sort of thing. Secretariat tolerates it. The only person I know whom he may be very good friends with is his groom, Eddie Sweat, who is absolutely marvelous. I think Eddie represents a large percentage of Secretariat's ability to conserve and present his speed at the right time. He never fights him, but always keeps him calm and happy. Secretariat is very hard to get to know."

Also to catch on a race track.

Lompoc Legion rips Moorpark

The Lompoc Post 211 American Legion baseballers exploded for 21 hits yesterday to crush Moorpark 12-0 in Moorpark.

That puts Lompoc's record at 2-1 for the young season.

Lompoc pitcher Craig Winegarner went the route, tossing a two-hitter and getting strong offensive support from Matt Knickrehm, Bucky Brockett, and Don Landry, each chipping in three base hits.

Jules Hain, Bruce Duncan, Winegarner, Charlie Denson and Ed Pebley added two hits each.

Knickrehm got the Lompocans off on the right foot with a two-run homer over the 370 foot sign in left center in the first inning, and ended the day a perfect 3-for-3 at the plate.

Monday finds muscle; Cedeno drives home 5

United Press International

After seven years of unfulfilled promise, Rick Monday has finally found the home run groove—from of all places the leadoff spot.

Monday, the first player ever chosen in major league baseball's free agent draft, signed a reported $104,000 bonus with Charles O. Finley's vagabond Kansas City-Oakland A's back in 1965, and from that day forth was expected to be a power hitter extraordinaire.

Unfortunately, it didn't quite work out that way as Monday, in six years with the A's, never even hit as many as 20 homers in a given season. And after being dealt to the Cubs last year and switched to the leadoff spot, there were still no telltale signs of power—until this year when he suddenly started banging out home runs at (for him) a record pace.

Monday clubbed homers in his first two trips to the plate Sunday, lifting his total to 14 for the season (fourth best in the National League) as the Cubs outslugged the Cincinnati Reds 9-7 to maintain their 5½ game lead in the N.L. East.

In other National League games, Montreal downed San Francisco 7-6, Philadelphia blanked San Diego 11-0, Houston belted Pittsburgh 7-1, Los Angeles whitewashed the New York Mets 4-0 and Atlanta split a doubleheader with St. Louis, the Cards taking the opener 4-3 and the Braves coming back in the nightcap 5-2.

Cesar Cedeno had his first big day at the plate since returning to the Houston lineup from a muscle pull, driving in five runs with a pair of homers as the Astros breezed over the Pirates. Southpaw Jerry Reuss snapped a personal three-game losing streak to register his seventh victory of the year.

Righthander Wayne Twitchell registered his second straight shutout to pitch the Phillies to their laugher over San Diego. Twitchell, now 5-2, also snapped a personal 0-for-30 batting draught with two singles, a double and one RBI.

Surprising Montreal completed its three-game sweep of the slumping Giants and reached the .500 mark for the first time ever this far along in the season as Boots Day drove across a pair of runs in the bottom of the eighth with a bases-loaded single.

Atlanta's Roric Harrison and Danny Frisella combined on a two hitter to halt St. Louis in the second game of their twinbill

Dodgers bats, arms in top form

NEW YORK (UPI)— Claude Osteen had just come off the field and was sitting in the trainer's room with his left elbow in a pan of ice and his left shoulder surrounded by an ice bag. but the big grin on the Los Angeles hurler's face overshadowed the pain he felt.

"I felt like I had it all," Osteen said, after his three hitter against the New York Mets gave the Dodgers a 4-0 victory, their 11th in the last 15 games to boost them over the .600 mark. "I've been looking for it—my control—all year."

Osteen faced only 31 men in recording his fourth consecutive victory and raised his record to 7-3.

"There's been a couple of things I lacked before today," he said, "but today my control was good. Control is the big thing with me."

In recording his low - hit game, Osteen walked two and made the only error of the game but didn't strike out any Mets. "I never did strike out many," Osteen said. "If I haven't become a strikeout pitcher in 13 years I'm not going to become one now."

Osteen got what turned out to be all the runs he needed when rookie catcher Joe Ferguson led off the second inning with his 12th homer.

"I'm finally beginning to relax," Ferguson said. "Selecting pitches during the game is getting me over the hump of first-year jitters."

Ferguson also singled in the ninth to drive in the fourth run.

So many of the Los Angeles players are rookies or relative newcomers that Osteen confessed to being worried at the beginning of the year.

Nastase wins amidst jeers

ROME (UPI) — Romania's Ilie Nastase defeated Manuel Orantes of Spain today to win the men's singles final of the Italian tennis championship 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Orantes, the defending champion at Rome, was never in the match. He held his opening serve of the first set at love then lost 11 straight games.

Nastase, who won the French Open last week and the Italian title in 1970, broke the Spaniard's will with a brilliant display of volleys and net play.

By the middle of the third set, the crowd began to whistle and jeer the players for what must have been one of the dullest finals in a major tennis tournament.

Nastase won eleven straight points from the second through the fourth games of the second set.

By comparison, Orantes won only six points through the first five games of that set.

Nastase, who earned $16,000 for the victory, ended the slaughter on his first match point, forcing Orantes to hit wide in the seventh game which went to deuce.

American League roundup

Death threat doesn't deter Indians

United Press International

Ken Aspromonte temporarily forgot his club's lease on the American League East cellar Sunday and instead thought about his own new lease on life.

John Ellis singled home Buddy Bell with the winning run in the ninth inning as the Indians snapped a 10-game losing streak with a 6-5 victory and a doubleheader split with the Chicago White Sox. Rick Reichardt's three-run pinch homer in the ninth inning gave Chicago a 5-3 victory in the opener.

Aspromonte, depressed over the Indians' recent skid that sent the club 14 games under .500, paid little attention to a telephoned death threat Saturday night to the Cleveland front office.

The unidentified caller said that if Aspromonte went to the mound Sunday he would be shot. The Cleveland management put extra plainclothes detectives in the stands as a precautionary measure.

"I guess I finally made it as a big league manager, I've been threatened," Aspromonte said. "But after the first game loss it didn't make any difference," smiled Aspromonte after Cleveland's second game triumph.

Bell opened the Cleveland ninth in the nightcap by beating out an infield single. Jack Brohamer walked and both runners advanced on George Hendrick's sacrifice. Terry Forster, who had 11 saves for the White Sox, came in to replace Cy Acosta and Ellis hit the first pitch into left field for a single.

In the opener John Jeter and Eddie Leon hit back-to-back singles with one out in the ninth. Reliever Jerry Johnson struck out pinch-hitter Mike Andrews but Reichardt then followed with his game-winning homer.

In other games, Oakland blanked Detroit 5-0, Kansas City beat New York 7-4, Minnesota routed Baltimore 11-4, Milwaukee outslugged California 8-6 and Boston ripped Texas 10-1.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, treated to an 11-hit attack, hurled a three-hitter and sent Detroit down to its second straight shutout in pitching Oakland over the Tigers. Bill North led the A's offense with three hits, a walk and a stolen base. Oakland scored single runs in the first, second, third, fifth and seventh innings with five different players driving in the tallies. Hunter struck out four batters and walked only one in gaining his eighth victory in 11 decisions.

John Mayberry clouted his 14th homer of the season and Paul Splittorff recorded his ninth win when the Royals erupted for five runs in the fourth inning en route to their triumph over the Yankees that snapped a five-game losing streak. Mayberry connected in the second inning to record his 56th RBI. The Royals scored another run when Paul Schaal singled, took second on Gene Michael's error and scored on Fran Healy's single. Splittorff, who went the distance for the seventh time this year, is now 9-3.

Larry Hisle, Jim Holt and Bobby Darwin each clubbed two-run homers as Minnesota routed the Orioles. Hisle's seventh home run climaxed a seven-run third inning as the Twins chased losing pitcher Doyle Alexander in favor of reliever Orlando Pena. Holt ripped his sixth home run in the fifth inning with Steve Braun aboard on a single to insure Dick Woodson's fifth victory, which was aided by the relief work of Ray Corbin.

Bruins breeze to NCAA title as SC folds

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Before going into last weekend's NCAA track and field meet, UCLA coach Jim Bush pointed out that his team won the 1972 title with a large point total but that the toughest competition his Bruins had to face folded.

"You can't expect that to happen two years in a row," Bush said.

But it did.

Not that UCLA needed any help in winning its third straight NCAA track and field championship but the USC Trojans helped out at every turn and instead of challenging UCLA for the title. USC finished with an embarrassingly paltry nine points.

UCLA had disappointments itself when senior Harry Freeman reinjured a previously pulled hamstring muscle and had to withdraw from the triple jump and when Benny Brown, the heavy favorite in the quarter mile dash, was upset by Arizona State's Maurice Peoples.

But the Bruins had plenty in reserve to pile up 56 points—Bush had said anyone scoring in the upper 50s would win—and easily surpass the 31 points achieved by runner-up Oregon.

And Bush feels his team next year will be just as good as the 1973 version, even though he loses two performers who won the Bruins two individual championships—Finn Bendix in the long jump and Milan Tiff in the triple jump.

Bush has said he has enough quality athletes recruited for next year to make the 1974 Bruins the best track team ever assembled — something he has also called his newly crowned championship team.

The 52nd NCAA championships run off in the heat and humidity at Louisiana State University had some excellent individual performances — particularly from miler Dave Wottle, distance ace Steve Prefontaine and pole vaulter Dave Roberts.

Wottle, the 800-meter gold medal winner in last year's Olympics, set an NCAA mile record of 3:57.1, the best he has ever run, and led seven other runners who broke the four minute barrier—the most in history ever to break four minutes in the same race.

Prefontaine, of Oregon, also set a record of 13:05.3 in the three mile, winning the event for the fourth consecutive year. And Roberts of Rice won the pole vault for the third straight year, leaping 17-4 on his final attempt at that height.

Despite the fine individual performances it was still hard to forget about the lost weekend suffered by USC.

Things started to go wrong Thursday night when defending high hurdle champion Jerry Wilson failed to make it out of the qualifying round.

Then on Friday Don Quarrie, who had seemed to be a good bet to win both sprints, finished seventh in the 100-yard dash and Olympic champion long jumper Randy Williams slumped to fourth place in his specialty behind two UCLA jumpers.

And finally on Saturday Williams and Greg Jones fumbled and dropped the first baton pass in the sprint relay to cost USC again and finally Quarrie was overcome by the heat moments before the start of the 220-yard dash and could not run.

About the only consolation USC has is that it still leads UCLA in team track titles, 25-5. It is going to take UCLA quite some time to catch up, no matter how many "best ever" teams Bush comes up with.

Meneley supermain Speedway winner

Bob Meneley of Buellton ended Bobby Randolph's consecutive main event win string Saturday night with a decisive super stock main event victory at the Santa Maria Speedway. Meneley led most of the race with Bill Bellefleur of Santa Maria challenging constantly but not quite able to overtake him. Bobby Randolph of Santa Maria was third.

Carson Porter of Morro Bay, making his debut this year at the speedway, took the checkered flag in the super modified main event. Roy Miller of Paso Robles was second and Dale Mynderup of Arroyo Grande third.

Trophy girl Bunny Woods presented trophies to dash winners Bill Bellefleur "A" superstock, Jack Ledbetter of Orcutt in slow super stock, and Gary Lynch of Atascadero in super modifieds.

Super stock heat race winners were rookie driver Terry Randolph making his second start, Bill Baker of Pismo Beach, driving a six cylinder engined Chevy, and Meneley.

Super Modified heat race winners were Ted McClure of San Luis Obispo, who just purchased his super modified, and Dale Mynderup of Arroyo Grande, who sold McClure the super modified.

Past track qualifying times for Friday night were super modified driver Gary Lynch with a 16.92 second clocking and super stock driver Randolph with a one lap time of 18.23 seconds.

Discus win

HAYWARD (UPI) — John Powell tuned up for this week's National AAU Championships at Bakersfield Saturday by hurling the discus 206-9 at the Pacific Association's AAU meet.

It was Powell's seventh victory in 10 meets this year.

Speedway

ALTAMONT (UPI) — Lloyd Beard of Los Banos won the half-mile main event for super-modified and sprint cars Sunday at Altamont Speedway after surviving three restarts due to wrecks.

Dennis Hicks of Stockton was second, well behind Beard.

Ride and tie

ANGELS CAMP (UPI) — The third annual Levi's Ride and Tie horse race Sunday tested human and animal endurance with two people alternating on one horse over a 30-mile course through the rugged Sierra foothills.

The winning team was Chuck Stalley, 20, and Butch Alexander, 19, both Santa Rosa Junior College students, who repeated their win of last year's race held near Alturas.

Golf Tips from the Old Masters

By The Editors of Golf Digest

HOW YOU SHOULD SET UP FOR SAND SHOTS

Julius Boros uses a longer and slower swing for sand shots than most pros and he believes this is more adaptable for average golfers.

"First, I take a stance so that the ball is off my left heel and my left foot is drawn back slightly from the intended line of flight. I wiggle my feet into the sand so that I have a firm base for my swing.

"Then I take aim on the spot behind the ball where I want to strike with the clubhead. If the sand is soft I try to hit two or three inches behind the ball; if it's hard and packed I aim an inch or two more behind the ball.

"The reason I use a long, slow swing is to assure that I contact the sand exactly where I'm aiming. Any short, quick movements are likely to throw the swing off target," Boros says.

Ski meeting

SUN VALLEY, Ida. (UPI) — The United States Ski Association completed its 65th convention during the weekend by passing a budget of more than $1 million.

The budget covers expenses for USSA and the now separated United States Ski Education Foundation.

The convention also adopted a measure urging Congress to pass HR-1403 which authorizes leases of public land for recreational purposes.

SC vs. ASU at World Series

Diamond giants battle

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — It will be a battle of the collegiate baseball giants at the College World Series here tonight when defending series champion Southern California meets Arizona State, rated No. 1.

Other games today and tonight pitted series newcomer Georgia Southern against Big Ten champion Minnesota and Big Eight power Oklahoma tangling with a tough Texas club.

Both Southern Cal and Arizona State proved their credentials in hard encounters Sunday. The Trojans were hard pressed against Texas until the eighth when centerfielder Fred Lynn broke a 1-1 tie with a three-run homer. Southern Cal came out on top 4-1.

The same was true with Arizona State, which waited until the eighth before breaking the game open with a two-run homer by Bill Berger to best Minnesota.

Other action Sunday saw Georgia Southern blank Harvard 8-0 and send the Crimson home from the double-elimination tournament. Penn State earlier had been eliminated.

Arizona State Coach Jim Brock said his team's performance over Minnesota "wasn't that good.

"We were not aggressive again. Bill Berger was the only player we had on the field who battled out there."

He said the Sun Devils would start either Jim Otten (15-1) or Doug Slocum (13-0) for the Trojan contest this evening.

Matra wins at LeMans

LE MANS, France (UPI) For 22-½ hours, Italian Ferraris and French Matras battled for the lead and victory in the Le Mans 24-hour endurance classic for sports cars.

With 95 minutes left, the red Ferrari of Belgian Jacky Ickx came limping into the pits and gave up its final pursuit of the lead car, the blue Matra of Frenchmen Henri Pescarolo and Gerard Larrousse.

"Bad luck, Ickx, bad luck, Ferrari," said the announcer but 300,000 French sports enthusiasts were estatic as Pescarolo, last year's winner with Briton Graham Hill, went on to win unchallenged, duplicating the victory of two other Frenchmen, Andre Lagache and Rene Leonard who won the first Le Mans race 50 years ago.

Pescarolo's Matra crossed the finish line six laps ahead of the next Ferrari, with Arturo Merzario of Italy and Brazil's Carlos Pace driving. A second Matra took third spot, another eight laps back.

Rifle tourney

Jeff Harrison, president of the Lompoc Junior Rifle Club, took first place in the aggregate competition at Saturday's rifle tournament at Lompoc's Sportsman Field.

Competing were teams from San Luis Obispo, Vandenberg AFB, and the Lompoc Club.

Harrison compiled 356 points to Terry Leitner's (San Luis) 347.

In the prone position, Marty Youman of San Luis took first with 186, followed by Kevin Doud of Lompoc (181) and Ray Arbini of San Luis.

In sitting position, Youman won again with a 174, Arbini took second with 146 and Doud third.

Sprint champ

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI) — Selecting won the sprint championship of the spring season at Golden Gate Fields Saturday by scoring a three-quarter length victory in the $25,000 added All American Handicap.

Selecting covered six furlongs in a fast 1:09 and returned $14.80, $6.80 and $3.60. I'm Ed finished second and favored Goalie was third.

Kemp wins Can-Am kickoff

MOSPORT, Ont. (UPI) — Charlie Kemp was not overawed by the 1,000-plus horsepower capability of his turbocharged year-old Porsche.

For Sunday's Labatt's Blue Can-Am, he decided to play it "conservative", toning down his turbocharger for increased reliability.

The policy paid off. Kemp, a 38-year-old former Jackson, Miss. stockbroker, led the survivors of the first installment of the 10-race Canadian American Challenge Series, making off with top prize money of $15,000.

Only 11 of the 20 starters completed the 197-mile grind around the 2.45 mile countryside circuit located about 60 miles northeast of Toronto.

Though his average speed— 108.645 miles per hour—was more than two m.p.h. slower than the race's 1972 winner, Denis Hulme, Kemp led second-place finisher Hans Wiedmer, also in a Porsche, by two laps at the end.

Bob Nagel was third in a Lola, Scooter Patrick, in a McLaren was fourth and Steve Durst, in a non-turbocharged Porsche, was fifth.

If you are worried about voiding your Auto Liability Insurance by participating in a car pool — relax! As long as the pool is not operated for profit there is no problem. Even if one of your riders pays a regular fee in lieu of driving — if the fee covers just gas, oil and general depreciation allowance, your insurance protection remains intact. We would recommend higher Bodily Injury Limits. If you're still in doubt — drop by or give us a call — we'll be glad to help.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — My friend Flakely thinks the energy crisis, in particular the gasoline shortage, is the greatest thing since the invention of electric swizzle sticks.

"How can you say that, Flakely?" I cried, genuinely shocked, when I heard him voice that sentiment. "Don't you realize inadequate gasoline supplies can cause severe transportation problems?"

"About 64 per cent of all auto travel is unnecessary anyhow," Flakely replied. "Any hardships in the remaining 36 per cent would be more than offset by the spinoff benefits."

"What spinoff benefits?"

"I'm a tennis player," Flakely said. "But in the past couple of years so many other people have taken up the game it's difficult to find a place to play. A good, stiff gasoline pinch will eliminate that problem."

"You mean that people won't be able to drive to the courts any longer?"

"I mean more courts will be available. During a severe gasoline shortage there will be a lot of vacant parking lots. We can put up nets and play on them."

I gave my head a thoughtful nod. "Looks like you may have hit on something big," I said. "Are there any other benefits in sight."

"The highway fatality rate is now running at 55,000 a year. Many of these accidents are caused by excessive speed.

"To save gasoline, the government is considering reducing highway speed limits. In the process, it will save thousands of lives as well."

I said, "That could be almost as important as acquiring more tennis courts. Anything else?"

"As traffic thins out, there won't be any need for all those freeways crisscrossing our cities. Meanwhile, meat prices continue to soar.

"The obvious step here is to plant grass on one or two lanes of the freeways and graze cattle on it. Thus the gasoline shortage increases the beef supply and helps combat inflation."

"This is beautiful," I marveled. "The gas shortage is almost too good to be true."

"And those benefits are just for openers," Flakely said. "As the shortage continues, other blessings will become apparent. Take those multi-story parking garages with their spiraling ramps.

"When they become empty we can bring in artificial snowmaking equipment and create the world's first indoor ski slopes."

Flakely's vision is wonderful to contemplate, but one thing about it bothers me: If an energy crisis is so great, how come somebody didn't think of having it sooner?

LOMPOC RECORD

OPINIONS

The columns of the Lompoc Record are open to all expressions of opinion consistent with good taste and the laws.

The Record's aim is to present facts in its news columns and opinions in its editorial columns.

FBI choice

It would appear that President Nixon's search for a director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is ended with the nomination of Clarence M. Kelley, Kansas City, Mo., police chief.

On the surface, Kelley comes highly qualified for this extremely important position. He was a former FBI man for 21 years until his retirement in 1961 to become police chief of his home town. As police chief of Kansas City he has reduced that community's crime rate by 24.3 per cent since 1969.

His background for all of his adult life is law enforcement. In our opinion this had to be the top qualification for the important post of FBI director. There appears to be no political involvements in the career of Kelley such as there were in the aborted appointment of L. Patrick Gray.

Kelley still faces confirmation by the Senate and it is certain that details of his long career in law enforcement will be magnified and expanded upon.

If confirmed by the Senate, Kelley will take command of a law enforcement agency which has been without a permanent head since the death of J. Edgar Hoover May 2, 1972. He will take command of an agency which has also been shaken and demoralized in the Watergate scandal.

If what we know about Kelley at present is fact, it appears certain that he will put this highly sensitive and important agency back on the right track.

China digging

SIAN, Shensi Province, China — In this teasure house of China's ancient history the old and the new are both part of the upsurge of a people whose energies have been released as rarely before.

The broad Sian plain that sweeps down from the rugged country around Yenan is cultivated to the last inch and the fields of wheat, ready for harvest, are yellow in the sun. With extensive irrigation and electrical pumps to bring the water out of deep wells and send it coursing down thousands of channels, the crop yield is said to be at least half again as great as it was before 1949. By the end of the decade the total will be double that "before liberation."

The pride of commune and brigade leaders in their achievements as we have talked with them in traveling around the country is familiar enough. What surprises the visitor is pride in the ancient past. That pride is reflected in the restoration of the temple and pavilions that had suffered such sad neglect and in the zeal of archaeological teams excavating the tombs of the Tang dynasty that flourished in Sian from 618 to 917 A.D. with imperial rule over all of China and over territory later annexed by Russia.

To go through the historical museum, housed in the former temple of Confucius with a fragrant garden designed around the restored pavilions, in the company of scholarly, humorous Yuan Chung-yi is to get an idea of the wealth that has already come to light and the far greater riches still to come.

As director of the Committee for Preservation of Relics, Yuan is coordinator of the work of the museum and the archaeological digs in the province. Many of the objects — the figurines, the mirrors, the ornaments, the gaming dice — now on display came from a dig that in light of those to follow is minor.

A bronze wine container in the shape of a rhinoceros has a vivid lifelike quality. In one case is a magnificent Tang horse with a high glaze. This it turns out, is a remarkably faithful reproduction, since the original and a few other of the rarest pieces are in Paris at the exhibition of Chinese art that will go to London and, hopefully, later to the National Gallery in Washington.

The dig from which many of the objects came was that of the tomb of Princess Yung Tai, who died at the age of 17 in 701. The granddaughter of the third emperor of the Tang dynasty, Li Chi, the legend, still debated by historians, is that she was poisoned by her grandmother for gossiping about Wu Tse-tien, who was to rule as empress after the death of the emperor.

To go down into the princess's tomb through the long entry way with the murals of court life on either side, many reproductions based on careful research along with the dim fragments that survived damp, cold and tomb robbers, is to get a dramatic sense of that ancient past. It is to share the enthusiasm of the archaeologists — Chao Pei-yuan, who calls himself an amateur although he has been in the work for 14 years and is head of the team, and, a professional archaeologist, Yang Cheng-hsin.

But if princess Yung Tai's tomb was a success, with 1,354 pieces recovered in spite of the tomb robbers — the skeleton of one of which was found clutching gold and silver pieces after he had apparently fallen out with his confederates — it pales beside the project just ahead.

The team is preparing to excavate the tomb of Emperor Li Chi, which occupies virtually a whole mountain. A royal way leading to the emperor's tomb is lined with massive stone sculptures of birds, animals and tomb guardians. At the end of the way is a kind of royal enclosure with 61 stone figures representing the ambassadors and heads of state who came from afar to attend the emperor's funeral.

This, incidentally, belies the myth that China as the middle kingdom was shut away from the rest of the world. During the Tang dynasty 21 countries, running from Afghanistan to Persia, were represented at court.

What is happening today in Peking, with more and more emissaries coming from abroad, suggests a parallel with the epoch of the Tang emperors in opening up a China so long unknown.

The archaeologists know well that, supported by funds from the Provincial treasury, they will never run out of work. In one county alone, about 40 miles from Sian, are 18 imperial tombs still to be excavated. Along with these are annex tombs of relatives and state ministers — 17 such annexes with the tomb of Emperor Li Chi.

From the height which the emperor chose for his burial you look out on a great sweep of country. You see the extraordinary terraces for intensive cultivation built with so much hard, stooping labor on every hillside. It is the old and the new in a China that old Emperor Li Chi would have understood.

"(Sigh) . . . Everybody's writing a book on Watergate, these days!"

New P.O troubles?

We have all heard the talk for a long time splitting our state at the Tehachapi mountains to create North and South California, or Northern and Southern California, if you prefer. We've even heard talk of splitting this county in two parts — north and south.

But now a Michigan State University professor of geography, with nothing better to do, obviously, would not only split up California but also most of the other 47 contiguous states, stir Hawaii and Alaska into the mixture and come up with 16 new states.

Common ground by Steve La Rue

The point of the good professor is that current state boundaries are absolutely meaningless. He believes they should be redefined on the basis of political, economic and social shifts of the past and the probable future.

Here's the states he has in mind:

PACIFICA: including Northern California, Western Nevada, most of Oregon and all of Washington, Alaska and Hawaii. The capital? San Francisco.

ANGELINA: Los Angeles, the capitol of Southern California and parts of Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

ROCKY: Denver the capital of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and parts of Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Montana.

Farther east the states would be NORTH PLAINS, containing most of the Dakotas, all of Minnesota and parts of Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska; CENTRAL PLAINS, SOUTH PLAINS, going down the great plains area; NORTH HEARTLAND, around Lake Michigan; SOUTH HEARTLAND; NEW SOUTH, covering most of the old South; self explanatory GULF COAST; TROPICANA, with most of Florida and all of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands; CAROLINA; MID ATLANTIC; EMPIRE, with New York City as the capital, heaven help it; YANKEE, the New England area; and INDUSTRY, centered on Detroit as the capital.

This is merely a thought of the professor but as if the Postal Service wasn't having enough trouble, the good professor has to come along with this!

Vandenberg wilderness

Had John Venable been a 15th Century English long bowman, the incident wouldn't have been news.

A piglet was mired down in the mud and shreiking for its momma. Venable sloshed across wetlands to retrieve it. It was almost cute.

But its mother, a mature, 250 pound, 30 inch high boar, which broke rambling out of the underbrush in a full, dedicated charge, was not.

Venable got enough of a look to discern four triangular-shaped tusks jutting out of her uncharitable mouth, two up and two down to handle all comers and each honed gillette sharp by rooting in the sandy soil.

Venable rolled with the impact, but his left arm flailed out from his body and it was there, above the elbow, that a tusk caught him and neatly laid open a several inch-long gash. The boar stormed off with her piglet, leaving Venable searching for a binding for his arm and bringing the confrontation between man and beast to a businesslike conclusion.

The moral: there are numbers of wild boar inhabiting the San Antonio River bottom wetlands on Vandenberg Air Force Base.

But Venable, who is not really a long bowman but a first lieutenant in missiles, a qualified game warden and a volunteer in the base's wide-ranging conservation program, already knew this, at least theoretically.

In fact, Vandenberg's better than 98,000 acres, most of which have changed little since before the Spanish, are turf for a crowd of other species as well, including Mountain Lion, Bobcat, Coyote, Raccoon, Beaver, Badger, Brush and Jack Rabbit, Opossum, quail, skunk, and Grey Fox.

By Cal. State Fish and Game Department estimates, there's a thriving herd of 2,500 deer on base and Venable tells of a boar population of 200, King snakes six feet long and a seasonal "rash" of rattlers this year, probably due to the wet winter.

Countless migratory waterfowl hatch their young on Vandenberg wetlands and populations of abalone in the coastal shallows, though a target for poachers, are managed and watched over by State Fish and Game Department officers.

Though univerified by state biologists, there have also been numerous sightings on base of Golden Eagle. Least Turn and Peregrine Falcon have also been reported sighted but have not been verified. Armadas of hawks, including White Tailed Kites and other varieties, are visible daily.

The base, whose conservation program has been labeled one of the finest by State Fish and Game Director Ray Arnet, may in fact be the last preserve of its type on the California Coast.

There is no conservation specialty for Air Force personnel, so the Vandenberg program, which began in 1968, fell to interested volunteers. Under Col. Roy A. Lancaster, former conservation prime mover and now base commander, six full time military personnel have been assigned to the post's own Environmental Protection Agency.

These are still backed by numbers of base volunteers who also work 40 hour weeks in other specialties as, for example, the 20 volunteer game wardens who patrol the water foul infested San Antonio wetlands area.

Under Maj. Boykin W. Gartrell, chief of the Environmental Protection Office on base, a wetlands development program has been intiated. Part of this plan involves dynamiting small reservoir-basins in wetlands areas to retain water for the returning waterfoul who reproduce there.

Gartrell, who says the program's already begun to invite increased numbers of birds says the basins also serve as watering areas for deer when they descend from the hills in the dry months.

More on the Vandenberg wilderness next week.

Yesteryears

June 15, 1945

Sunday, June 24 is scheduled as Salvage Day in Lompoc for collecting paper and old magazines. This will be the regular pickup program with Army trucks from Camp Cooke doing the hauling to the central depot and Boy Scouts and their leaders doing the loading and unloading.

The city of Lompoc will shortly receive a check in the sum of $3,449.61 from the Santa Barbara County Housing Authority, Fred I. Laurence, executive secretary of the Authority announced yesterday.

Sugar ration coupons for canning purposes are now being issued at the Lompoc Rationing Board's office, H. E. McLaughlin, chairman of the local board announced yesterday.

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING

Sales Management magazine reports on the tattered old man who said he used to be poor. "But the bureaucrats decided that I was 'needy,'" he continued, "then they called me 'indigent,' From that I became 'underprivileged,' then 'deprived,' and now I'm 'disadvantaged.' I'm no better off except that I got a lot bigger vocabulary." ... Remember all those kids that were in school all day? Well, they're out now and we've got to drive carefully and always be on the lookout for the little one who darts out into the street or comes wobbling down the street on a bicycle ... The other morning we were up very early and reading the morning paper. It was very still in the house when suddenly we heard sounds similar to a person walking on the roof of the house. We listened carefully and there they were again. We sneaked out the back door and lo and behold, on the roof were two huge crows walking back and forth.
